THE CHANT

Every few months, someone announces relief. The price drops for a season. The bill gets a subsidy. Then it comes back — worse.

That's not bad luck. That's a system with no memory and no consequences.

Nobody loses their job when the exam paper leaks. Nobody loses their post when the load-shedding schedule doesn't add up. So we're not asking for another relief package. We're asking why the same failure keeps getting a new name.

PCP | We Will Change the System, Pakistan Will Change

Not a personality. A discipline.

Pakistan doesn't need another face. It needs a system that works the same way for everyone, whether or not you know someone. PCP is a Gen Z-initiated but all-Pakistani, peaceful, constitutional reform movement — open to every Pakistani, of every age, who's done watching the same failure get a new name every election cycle.

Our loyalty is only to Pakistan, its Constitution and its people. Nothing else — not a founder, not a donor, not a party.

Why the cockroach?

They've called this generation lazy, entitled, obsessed with leaving. Fine. Here's what's true instead: we grew up doing homework by candlelight during load-shedding, learned new skills from a phone with two bars of signal, and are still here — still applying, still building, still arguing for a better Pakistan instead of just booking the visa appointment.

You can step on a cockroach and it gets up. That's the joke. It's also not a joke.

It's not an insult we're using — it's one we took back. So we're strict about it: PCP members never call opponents, officials or ordinary citizens "cockroaches" or "filth." The symbol is ours, aimed at ourselves, and it means one thing only:

- Survival — staying active and hopeful through crisis after crisis.
- Adaptability — learning new skills and better ways of organising, fast.
- Persistence — refusing to accept injustice as just "how things are."
- Self-accountability — cleaning our own house before we criticise anyone else's.

Five demands. Not five promises.

Every demand below comes with a costed policy paper, a 100-day plan and numbers we publish so you can check whether we kept our word. This page has the headline. The full detail is in the Movement Manual.

- 01 One Law, One Accountability — Same rules for a minister's son and a mechanic's son. Asset declarations, open contracts, courts that publish how long a case actually takes.
- 02 Lower Inflation, Higher Income — Not another price freeze — fair tax enforcement, a minimum wage that moves with real prices, and public data on where the money actually goes.
- 03 Work or a Way to Build Something — Government can't hire everyone. It can stop making it impossible to start a business, get an apprenticeship, or get paid what a job is actually worth.
- 04 Show Us the Bill Before You Send Us the Bill — Full public numbers on what electricity actually costs to generate, where it leaks, and who's protected from the real price — before another bill lands.
- 05 Every Child in School, Every Skill Worth Something — Not enrolment photos — attendance, literacy you can measure, teachers who show up, and a path from school into real work.

Ten lines we don't cross.

- 01 Same law for everyone — Family, wealth or connection doesn't change the standard of justice.
- 02 Best person for the job — Appointments and contracts go by published criteria — not who you know.
- 03 Show your work — Budgets, contracts and decisions in formats a normal person can actually search.
- 04 An economy that hires — Tax and trade policy judged by one thing: does it create real, dignified work.
- 05 Skills that are worth something — Every child in school. Every young person with a skill someone will pay for.
- 06 Show us the bill first — A transparent account of what energy actually costs, before we're charged for it.
- 07 Every office has a leash — Defined powers, a term limit, and a real way to appeal a decision — including ours.
- 08 Decisions made close to home — Water, roads and local services decided by the people who live with them.
- 09 Disagreement isn't enmity — We criticise with evidence and law — never hatred, threats or violence.
- 10 Constitution above everyone — Every reform follows the law. No exceptions for anyone, including us.

This isn't a fan club. It's a pledge.

"I pledge loyalty to Pakistan, its Constitution and its people. I will act peacefully, lawfully and honestly — reject hatred and misinformation, disclose conflicts of interest, and accept fair accountability. I will work to change systems through knowledge, service and democratic participation."

If that's a pledge you'd actually sign — not just repost — you're already one of us. Bring a friend who's about to give up on this country and show them this page instead.
